Examples of Expertise

Victoria has researched and delivered the 'Teach Like a Champion' behaviour for learning strategy as a two day whole school training course. The strategies she introduced are being used in abundance and having a real impact upon the quality of learning.

She has also introduced clear guidance relating to pathways of bespoke CPD training for staff with the development of professional learning communities and the use of action research to develop individual teacher's pedagogical understanding and developing a community of learning for all.

Victoria leads on a developmental programme which identifies teachers who require improvement, or are graded inadequate. Through careful coaching and bringing knowledge from her own outstanding practice and a wide range of pedagogical knowledge she unravels where that particular teacher needs to focus and puts in place a number of strategies to support them in achieving this goal.

As a Head of Faculty/Specialism at a secondary school in West London she took the faculty from unsatisfactory to outstanding within two years.

In relation to Performing Arts departments at two schools and a Marketing and Communications working party she has led others in discussing the vision and developing clear action plans with measurable outcomes relating to school improvement.
